21 Army Group Ordnance

This book was written and published by 21st Army Group in 1946 as a record of the ordnance services of the Army Group from the invasion in 1944 to the end of the war. It is a fascinating read and is well illustrated, with good maps to clarify the narrative. It fits in well with Administration History of 21st Army Group, also reprinted by MLRS. It shows how important these services were to the continued operation of the Army Group in defeating the Germans in Europe. ISBN: 9781847911049 £14.00

21st Panzer Division in combat against American Troops

LiGen Feuchtinger commanded 21st Panzer Division twice, the second time from May 1944 to January 1945. This is his account of the division in action against US troops from D-Day to the end of his second command period. He details the organisation of the division, and then covers various operations from first engagement on 25 July 1944. It is a valuable account of the operations of a crack German tank division at the end of the war, and great reading! ISBN: 9781847910592 £9.00

AIR MINISTRY WEEKLY INTELLIGENCE SUMMARIES February-July 1941

Air Ministry, Mint paperback reprint of a 1941 series of publications. 504pp.: All of the volumes in this series have a wealth of information on allied, enemy and neutral air forces, aircraft and operations and they serve as a most valuable adjunct to war diaries and other sources in that they fill in details of air matters often skated over in ground warfare accounts. There is no doubt that without knowledge of the air effort during ground campaigns the picture of the whole remains somewhat lacking - these volumes provide that information in spades! £50.00

AIR OPERATIONS PRIOR TO AND IN SUPPORT OF OPERATION NEPTUNE

Air Staff Mint paperback reprint of a 1945 publication. 86pp. : This report is a very good introduction to the air operations that were part of Operation NEPTUNE - the assault in Normandy on D-Day. It will give the reader a good general picture, and works well as an introduction to the RAF Monograph (North West Europe Volume III). With 6 maps. £16.00

AIR PHASE of the Italian Campaign (to 1.1 1944)

- 450p. 12 maps . mint pbk reprint . A very detailed monograph on operations carried out by the US Army Air Force during the Italian Campaign up to the end of 1943. The title covers the planning for the invasion of Italy, Operations BAYTOWN and AVALANCHE, and a detailed narrative covering all air operations from the invasion through to the end of 1943. The text includes both strategic and tactical air operations, and is a companion to the AHB narratives covering RAF operations in Italy. £45.00

AIR SUPPORT

Air Historical Branch Mint paperback reprint of a 1955 publication. 252pp. This monograph covers the subject of air support of ground forces in all the major theatres of operations in the Second World War. It describes operations in France and the Low countries in 1940, in the Mediterranean, in Burma and in Normandy from 1944. There are 14 significant appendices, one of which relates the history of the German Ground Attack Arm. The book adds to the knowledge of this aspect of the air/land battle, and is a complimentary volume to Air Support in the Second World War (which we also publish) which is arranged in a different way. Readers are strongly advised to purchase both volumes for comparison purposes, and for the differences in emphasis between the two. £35.00

AIR SUPPORT IN THE SECOND WORLD WAR

Air Historical Branch Mint paperback reprint of a 1945 publication. 212pp. This is a companion volume to Air Support (which we also publish). It has a different emphasis on the subject and, importantly, includes a number of coloured maps not in the other volume. It starts in Norway, continuing through France 1940, the Mediterranean, Burma and Malaya, and then covers the Normandy operations. The illustrations cover important areas of operations and organisation, and include a detailed map of the German defences at Cassino, and of Operations Crusader, Goodwood and Varsity. Once more, readers are advised that this volume should be read in conjunction with Air Support to get a full picture of this important aspect of the air/land battle as fought in the Second World War. £25.00

The importance of this report cannot be over-emphasised. £34.50

Airborne Number 4: Airtransported Operations

This is the fourth pamphlet in a series which was issued at the end of the Second World War. The aim of the series was to consolidate lessons learned and, in the case of this pamphlet, to produce guidelines for future airborne operations. The pamphlet covers airborne and airtransported operations, airborne forces and airtransported forces, and looks at organisation, training, operations and supply. It is illustrated with a number of line drawings of signals networks and loading plans for aircraft. It contains the basic format for airborne operations which was the product of such operations as the D-Day landings and Operation Market Garden. ISBN: 9781847910769 £15.00

AIRBORNE OPERATIONS IN EUROPE

Warren, Dr J.C. Mint paperback reprint of a 1956 publication. 248pp. This is an analysis of the three major airborne operations in northwestern Europe during World War II. Operations Neptune (D-Day), Market (Arnhem landing) and Varsity (Rhine crossing) are all covered in detail with statistical analyses of troops and aircraft/gliders involved. It presents a first class picture of the three operations, and shows why they were planned and how they were carried out. In all cases there is an account of post-drop operations on the ground. This account supplements the detail given in our other publications on these three drops: £28.00

ANZIO - THE GERMAN WAR DIARIES, 3rd EDITION

US Intelligence Mint paperback reprint. 134pp. The Allied invasion at Anzio was intended to open up the stalemated Italian front and lead to a rapid drive on Rome. The German High Command was hampered by the surrender of Italy in September 1943, and Field Marshals Kesselring and Rommel had to decide where to make their main line of resistance. Kesselring took overall command in Italy in November 1943. Allied landings at Salerno began well, but became bogged down; the landing at Anzio was intended to solve this logjam. The accounts of the action from January to May 1944 are taken from the War Diaries of the German 10th and 14th Armies. There is a day-to-day account of the German operations, including many comments on the British and US troops involved. Complete with Orders of Battle, this is a singular document which completes the picture of this battle. With six A2 maps from the original edition of the paper. £40.00

ARMoured OPERATIONS IN ITALY

Birks, Maj H.L. RAC; 76pp, Mint paperback reprint of a 1945 publication : Just occasionally we are able to reprint something of such scarcity that it stands alone on our list. This publication is such an item: it covers 11 armour actions in Italy, and is accompanied with maps of each engagement plus sketches and photographs (albeit of varying quality). The actions run from the Hitler Line to Operation "Cygnet," and include such units as 51 R Tks, 7 Hussars, 46 Recce Regt and others, including the 18 NZ Armd Regt. Each action has a short account by a participant, and the whole is one of those rare gems that occasionally surface. We cannot recommend it strongly enough. £30.00

BLITZKRIEG

Miksche, Col. F.O. Mint paperback reprint. 250pp. This is an analysis of the German art of war at the start of World War II. It covers operations by German troops in Spain, Poland, Norway and the Low Countries and demonstrates how the Germans used the combined arms approach to win the early battles of the Second World War. It deals in detail with the tactics of Blitzkrieg and the elements of the style - the air arm, armour and artillery. It also looks at what are now called battlegroups as well as offering valuable advice of defence against Blitzkrieg. This is a very important work which explains how the German method worked and what was needed to make it work. With a foreword by Tom Wintringham. £25.00

CAB44/249 OPERATION GOODWOOD

Paperback Reprint. British War Office, 182pp. Operation GOODWOOD - the official account. This publication is a reprint of the original CAB44/249 papers on Operation GOODWOOD in July 1944 - the armoured thrust south of Caen to the Bourgebus Ridge. It contains detailed orders at Army Group, Army and Corps level, and deals with every detail needed to understand this battle. Originally produced after the war as the basis for the later Official History, this volume contains many items not included in the later official publication, and clarifies many points not dealt with anywhere else. It contains a complete description of the battle, using unit war diaries as well as command records of the battle, and the German response to the attack. The price includes reprints of the 14 original maps which accompanied the document, and all are produced at a size to allow ease of reading - most are at A3. The publication is the only source of the details of the battle from the point of view of the British and Canadian forces engaged, and is perfectly suited to research, presentations and wargaming scenarios. £48.50

CAMPAIGN IN GREECE 1940-1941

Air Historical Branch, Mint paperback reprint of a 1947 publication. 140pp.: When Mussolini sent his troops into Greece they received a drubbing from the Greeks. Britain sent troops and air forces to support the Greeks, and even though this may have been a mistake (in that it foreshortened successful operations in the Western Desert) it was important to show the Greeks and the world that resistance to dictators was important. This is the RAF narrative of the campaign and covers 1940 and 1941. The paper covers land operations by the Greeks as well as by other elements involved and is a good basis for any in-depth study of this campaign. £20.00

CAMPAIGN IN GREECE AND CRETE 1941

CAMPAIGN IN SYRIA (RAF Narrative)

Air Historical Branch, Mint paperback reprint of a 1947 publication. 104pp.: The difference between the campaign in Syria and all other campaigns was that the Allies were fighting the Vichy French, not the Axis powers. This is the story of how the RAF was used with ground forces to force a decision in favour of the Allies. An interesting campaign which deserves further study. £12.00

CAMPAIGNS IN THE FAR EAST VOLUME III - INDIA COMMAND

Air Historical Branch, 202pp, Mint paperback reprint of a 1947 publication. This is the third volume in the Campaigns in the Far East series, and covers India Command from September 1939 to November 1943. The defence of India and Ceylon, expansion of the command and operations during the period are all chronicled. Operations include those during the retreat from Burma and in the monsoon period and in the First Arakan Campaign from December 1942 to May 1943. A prime source of information. £35.00

CAMPAIGNS IN THE FAR EAST VOLUME IV

Air Historical Branch, 516pp, Mint paperback reprint of a 1947 publication. : The history of air operations in South East Asia from November 1943 to August 1945. The narrative covers planning and strategy, the second Arakan campaign, the fight for air superiority, operations in Manipur in 1944 and in the Siege of Imphal, special forces operations, North Burma, strategic plans for 1945, the third Arakan campaign, operations in North Burma and the reconquest of Burma. Another of the first class historical records from AHB which all contain far more than just a bare history of RAF operations. Of prime importance to all scholars of this area of war. Complete with all the Appendices. £55.00

CAMPAIGNS IN THE FAR EAST, Vol. I

Air Historical Branch Mint paperback reprint of a 1940s publication. 76pp. This first volume of the RAF history of operations in the Far East covers events up to 1941, and starts at the Battle of Tsushima. It is a first class resume of the inter-war period in the Far East and is the first of a series of volumes on this often neglected theatre of war. £10.00

CAMPAIGNS IN THE FAR EAST, Vol. II: MALAYA, EAST INDIES AND BURMA

Air Historical Branch Mint paperback reprint of a 1940s publication. 264pp. This volume continues the story begun in Volume I, and starts with the last weeks of peace. It then covers the loss of Borneo, air attacks on Singapore and its fall, operations in Sumatra and Java and the First Burmese Campaign. Strengths of both RAF and Japanese air elements are given in detail in the appendices as well as a summary of army strength in Malaya on 7 December 1941 and a note on Japanese air forces in Malaya. £28.00

Combat effectiveness of German Heavy Tank Battalions in World War II

Major Wilbeck wrote this study on the heavy German Tank Battalions for his Masters Degree in Military Art and Science, and did a very good job. He covers the organisation of these battalions, consisting almost exclusively of Tiger tanks and their employment up to Operation Citadel and afterwards. The text is well written and accompanied by colour maps of the important engagements. Recommended as a study of how the big tanks were used by the Germans in the Second World War. CONFERENCE ON LANDING ASSAULTS 1943

US Assault Training Center, Mint paperback reprint of a 1943 publication. 570pp.: In May and June of 1943 in the United States a number of very senior Allied officers and their staffs met for a conference on landing operations - sea assaults - at the US Assault Training Centre. Many papers were presented giving the audience the benefit of the lessons learned from previous assault landings (mainly Operation Torch and the abortive attack on Dieppe), and laying out the principles and method for the greatest invasion of all - Operation Neptune, the D-Day assault landings in northern France. The whole makes fascinating reading, and it covers almost all aspects of this type of operation - from teeth arms to supporting services. The report is a must-have for any student of amphibious landings, and shows how well developed were the plans that eventually saw fruit on June 6, 1944. £50.00

CRETE 1940-1941

Mint paperback reprint. 250pp. The island of Crete had a strategic significance in the eastern Mediterranean which was recognised by both sides, and in late 1940 Allied preparations for the defence of the island were supposedly well advanced. However the German advance into Greece in 1941 meant that the island was in imminent danger. These papers from the British National Archives relate the history of the defenders and the attackers in detail, including the German preparations for the airborne landings. The whole campaign is covered in great detail, and the role of the Australian, New Zealand and Greek troops is well covered. This is the ultimate history of the campaign for Crete and is needed in any library which covers the war in the Mediterranean and airborne operations by the Germans. Of singular value and importance to all military historians. £55.00

DECOY & DECEPTION

Air Historical Branch, 370p, Mint paperback reprint of a 1947 publication. :Convincing an aerial enemy to bomb empty fields rather than a factory or a military dump was a factor which involved considerable effort and skilled subterfuge during the Second World War. This book looks at the problems and the solutions, not just in the UK but abroad (including German efforts) as well. It is complete with all diagrams and illustrations, and gives an insight into what was a fundamental deception task for all involved in bombing and ground-attack - on both sides. £45.00

EAST AFRICAN CAMPAIGNS 1940-1941 (RAF Narrative)

Air Historical Branch, Mint paperback reprint of a 1947 publication. 302pp. : The campaign in East Africa was one in which British and Commonwealth forces faced the Italians, and won. This is the story of those battles from the point of view of the RAF. Despite being an air paper it contains a wealth of detail on ground operations and can be used as a first class Vade mecum in any study of the area and the period. A rare item of great significance in studying the early form of warfare in the Second World War. £35.00

EASTERN FRONT TANK CRISIS

Chafian, Lt. Cdr S.M.; Mint paperback reprint of a 1992 publication. 98pp.: The appearance of the T-34 in 1941 caused a crisis for German antitank forces. Existing antitank guns were nearly impotent against the new Russian tank, while anti-aircraft and artillery pieces, though successful when pressed into action, were insufficiently mobile to accompany mechanized forces. The German Army Ordnance Office, the Heereswaffenamt, was responsible for development of new weapons and would be responsible for countering the threat of Russian armor. The Heereswaffenamt would need to not only counter the T-34, but also do so in an environment of shifting political relationships and with an increasingly stressed industrial system. This paper discusses the development of the Jagdpanzer IV - 'Guderian's Duck'. £10.00

GERMAN AIR FORCE AIR LIFT OPERATIONS

Morzik, Maj. Gen. Fritz Mint paperback reprint of a 1961 publication. This is the complete story of air lift operations carried out by the Luftwaffe during the Second World War. It includes the organisation, tasks, personnel and aircraft of the Luftwaffe transport arm, and a listing of the types of operation they were called upon to complete, in all the theatres of war in which German air and land forces were engaged. Paratroop operations are included in a complete description of an essential air service in war. Coverage of operations in the east is particularly detailed including Stalingrad, the Kuban bridgehead, Demyansk and Kholm, and the Cherkassy-Korsun and Crimea operations. In the west and the Mediterranean the detail is equally valuable. Although a mundane sounding subject, this volume in the Air War series is actually full of valuable extra detail not present in other publications, and is well worth the price. £52.00

GERMAN AIR FORCE VERSUS RUSSIA 1941

Plocher, Lt. Gen Hermann Mint paperback reprint of a 1965 publication. 365pp. This is the first of three volumes covering operations by the Luftwaffe in Operation Barbarossa. It looks initially at the background to the war against Russia and the deployment of Soviet and German Air Forces in June 1941. It continues with detailed descriptions of air operations to gain air superiority and a narrative of air operations from the far North to the Crimea, with many references to the needs for support and interdiction from the German Army. It was written by LtGen Plocher who was closely involved in the actual operations and is perhaps the only english language material available from such a valuable source. [see also Volumes for 1942 and 1943] £40.00

GERMAN AIR FORCE VERSUS RUSSIA 1942

Plocher, Lt. Gen Hermann Mint paperback reprint of a 1964 publication. 490pp. This is the second volume in the history of Luftwaffe operations in the Russian campaign and covers 1942. It starts with a description of the military situation at the start of 1942 and then covers operations in all Army Group areas from North to South. The last two chapters deal with Stalingrad and cover the air side of the battle in detail. This book will add to the knowledge of this fateful battle and the turn of fortunes that occurred in the winter of 1942/43. [see also Luftwaffe Air Lift Operations] £50.00

German Antiguerilla Operations in the Balkans (1941-1944)

The Balkans have been a part of European military history for centuries, and, as recent experiences have shown, there is a breed of men in the area ready and willing to fight virtually anyone, whether neighbour or invader. This is the story of the four year struggle for domination waged by the Germans and their allies in this region against Greek, Yugoslavian and Albanian resisters, and it covers the general conditions in the Balkans (including the people), the rise of the resistance, and the guerilla movements, together with descriptions of the main operations against the guerillas. It is a very good study of anti-guerilla warfare and the limitations imposed upon conventional forces in asymmetric warfare. ISBN: 9781847912718 £14.00

German preparations for the invasion of the United Kingdom

Operation SEALION was planned to be the seaborne invasion of the United Kingdom, and was greatly feared by all who lived in the British Isles through 1940 and 1941. This pamphlet was issued in early 1942 and contains the then-known facts about the proposed German invasion and the equipment devised to help the troops get ashore and stay there. It is of particular value in that it covers in some detail the resources available for the operation and the preparations made.

GERMAN RETREAT ACROSS THE SEINE 1944

British Bombing Analysis Unit Mint paperback reprint of a 1944 publication. 30pp. This is a reprint of an item for which many people have searched for many years. The German retreat across the Seine has been a controversial subject, and although many articles and commentaries refer to this document, few if any quote directly from it. The report was written by the Bombing Analysis Unit of the RAF, and gives a great deal of detail about what happened at the Seine after the Falaise debacle. The figures given contradict the idea that the German Army was wrecked by the time it approached the river, and that few men and very little equipment made the passage to safety on the east bank. Reprinted together with the 3 original maps (at A1 size) showing the crossings used and the bombing offensive against the escaping troops. £35.00

HORSES IN THE GERMAN ARMY 1939-1945

Mueller-Hildebrandt, Gen B. Mint paperback reprint of a 1948 publication. 698pp.:As the title says, this massive report is on the horses used by the German Army - especially in the Russian Campaign. It is exhaustive and shows that although the German Army had a reputation for Blitzkrieg and rapid moving tank spearheads, everything that followed moved at the pace of the horse. The report was written by Burkhart Mueller-Hildebrandt, a cavalry officer pre-war who became a successful Panzer General during the Second World War. The book will suit all military historians as well as vets and others interested in the horse. Accompanied by many analyses. £55.00

The original of this book is a propaganda exercise in part, but is also a chronicle of the events of 1940 and the successful invasions of Norway, the Low Countries, France and Belgium. There are articles on the campaigns themselves, and on the components of the Wehrmacht that made the whole thing possible. With good maps and a number of photographs, it is a record of the operations in 1940 that earned the German forces an impressive reputation for speed of manoeuvre and professionalism. LUFTWAFFE IN THE SPANISH CIVIL WAR (CONDOR LEGION)

Jaenecke, Col. Gen; et al Mint paperback reprint. 364pp. Covers the events of the Spanish Civil War from the point of view of the Germans, and particularly the Luftwaffe. It includes much detail of the ground fighting as well as activity in the air. This publication covers the whole war and in detail. It describes the events leading up to the German involvement, and the aircraft available, as well as the operations undertaken by the Legion. A unique source document, which has never been published before; it has been obtained from the US Air Force archives. The volume is reprinted exactly as the original with the exception that the pages have been slightly reduced in size (the original is on foolscap) and renumbered because the original numbering system was extremely confusing. £40.00

MIDDLE EAST CAMPAIGNS Vol. I : Libya and the Western Desert 1939-June 1941

Air Historical Branch, 266pp. Mint paperback reprint of a 1940s publication. The war in North Africa saw the development of tactical air support by the RAF as well as standard interdiction and bombing operations. This is the first of a series of volumes covering RAF operations in the area, and looks at operations in Libya and the western desert from September 1939 to June 1940. The rest of this series will follow. The Italians were the first enemy and their dispositions and operations are described, as well as the British conquest of Cyrenaica, the retreat from Agheila to the Egyptian frontier, the encirclement of Torbruk and Operation Battleaxe. This was 'pure' warfare in the sense that few civilians were involved, and bombing was tactical, and this account is a first class work on the period and the theatre. £29.50

MILITARY ENCYCLOPAEDIA (based on operations in the Italian Campaign 1943-1945)

- 610p mint pbk reprint of 1945 edition. It is primarily aimed at soldiers not staff officers, and is the more interesting for that reason. It covers all arms and services and contains many vignettes of action as well as military solutions. It reads easily and is of great value to students of the war in Italy - especially at soldier level. It is also of value in assessing the conduct of the campaign at ground level and as such of use to war gamers. £45.00

Military Operations in the Desert

General Erskine was GOC British Forces in Egypt in 1950, and wrote two short pamphlets designed to promote discussion on desert warfare. The two pamphlets are printed together and allow changes in emphasis to be seen. The experiences written of were gained by the British Army in the long campaign in the desert during the first half of the Second World War - and they are relevant today. Well worth the read to get a feel for operating in deserts and how to prevent issues typical of the terrain and climate. ISBN: 9781847910523 £7.00

Mountain and Flood - The History of 52nd (Lowland) Division

The 52nd Lowland Division was one of very few "special" divisions of infantry, in that it was trained for mountain warfare, although it spent much time after D-Day locked in battle on the flat lands of the North European coastal plain. This history of the division starts before the war in England, and goes on to describe operations in France in 1940. For four years they then trained and waited, before forming part of 21st Army group, and fighting the Germans in France, Holland and Germany. As with all good divisional histories, it is the story of men in battle that counts, and this volume is no exception. ISBN: 9781847910073 £28.00

NOTES ON WAR: The Infantry Division in Battle, Air Power in Support & The Armoured Division in Battle

Montgomery, Field Marshal Bernard L. Mint paperback reprint. 102pp. Field Marshal Montgomery's thoughts on battlecraft. In the winter of 1944, before the battle of the Bulge, Montgomery took the time to write down his basic thoughts (in reality his doctrinal mantra) on handling infantry and armoured divisions in war and the use of air power in battle. What is interesting is the realisation that he was always a man for the set-piece battle, and the resulting conclusion that Operation Market Garden was not typical of his method at all. In reading these three pamphlets (amalgamated into one by us), the voice of the man can be quite clearly heard! £9.50

OPERATION MERCURY: THE GERMAN XI AIR CORPS AND THE ATTACK ON CRETE

Paperback Reprint. British War Office, 108pp. The German parachute assault on Crete 1941. The German XI Air Corps mounted the German parachute assault on the island of Crete in 1941. It was the last time such a large scale attack was carried out by the Germans, due to the heavy losses they suffered in this operation. This Research Paper is a reprint of the important Pamphlet No. 38 in the ""Periodical Notes on the German Army"" series, issued by the War Office at various times during the Second World War. It contains details of the history and organisation of the German Fallschirmjäger (parachute) troops, as well as airlanding troops. It contains a wealth of detail about the operation itself including a number of captured orders and other papers. There are complete descriptions of the German paratrooper's equipment, his tasks in the operation and the method of transport to the island. There are also loading charts and diagrams for gliders. This was the only example of a War Office publication devoted entirely to these troops, and is a valuable research aid both into the attack on Crete and the history of the German paratroops. £14.50

OPERATIONS OF SECOND ARMY IN EUROPE 1944-45 Vol. 2: From the Maas to surrender

Second Army Staff, 190pp and 11 maps. Mint paperback reprint. A detailed history of the second half of 2 Army operations in Europe, covering the period from the clearance of the Rhine-Maas area to the capitulation of Germany. This volume is the second of two volumes we are reprinting on Second Army operations. Volume I covers operations prior to those narrated here, and the reference maps (published separately originally). This history of 2 Army is important in understanding the sequence of operations carried out during the advance to the German border and beyond. It complements the Battlefield tour series already published, and puts those operations and many others into their correct sequence and context. With a set of A2 and A3 operational maps including D-Day, Market Garden, the Rhine Crossing and others. Highly recommended. A4 softback. £37.50

OPERATIONS OF SECOND ARMY IN EUROPE 1944-45, Vol. 1: From planning Via D-Day to the Ardennes

Second Army Staff; 300pp, 30 maps. Mint paperback reprint. Part I of our reprint of the official two-volume set telling the story of 2 Army from D-Day to the end of the war. The narrative starts with the planning for D-Day and the operations on 6 June 1944, followed by a description of the establishment of the lodgement area. It then covers the breakout and the pursuit into Belgium, the liberation of southern Holland and the winter of 1944/45 in the Ardennes. This volume finishes the text of the series and the two volumes cover all activities connected to Second British Army throughout this decisive period. A4 softbound, 312pp. Printed in two parts for ease of use. Amply illustrated with OrBats., maps, situation maps and many appendices. £37.50

PLANNING D-DAY

Historical Section. Canadian Army Mint paperback reprint. 322pp. Planning D-Day: Operation OVERLORD and other plans. Planning for the invasion of Europe started in the dark days of 1940, and did not stop until the day of the landing on 6 June 1944. This official report gives much detail of the main plan and the various sidelines and other distractions that appeared between 1940 and 1944 and also covers the raiding policy before the main event, in particular the Dieppe operation. There are also details of the Mulberry project, COSSAC and the conferences which lead finally to the successful Operation OVERLORD. Highly recommended as it puts the whole planning stage of the operation into context and allows the reader to observe the effects of Dieppe and the Mediterranean landings of 1943. 322 A4 pages, softbound. £29.50

RAF IN MARITIME WAR, Vol. I

Air Historical Branch Mint paperback reprint of a 1940s publication. 406pp. The first of a set of volumes on the history of air power in maritime warfare. The book covers this history from the creation of the RAF to September 1939. Many critics have observed that air cover for convoys was not an RAF priority during the early years of the Second World War; this history shows the attitude of the Air Staff to this eventual problem, and the relationship between the RAF., the Fleet Air Arm and Coastal Command in the period leading up to the outbreak of hostilities. Further volumes will cover the war years, but this volume deserves to be read because it sets the scene for later events. £40.00

RAF IN MARITIME WAR, Vol. III - JULY 1941 TO FEBRUARY 1943

Air Historical Branch, 740pp, Mint paperback reprint of a 1947 publication. This is the third in the series, and covers the period July 1941 to February 1943. Coastal Command is expanded, the RAF joins forces with the RCAF and US air forces in the battle against the Uboats, operations continue in european waters, German surface warships are attacked in Brest harbour, anti-shipping warfare goes on, the convoys to Russia are described as is aerial minelaying. The narrative then concentrates on Operation TORCH, finally returning to the anti-Uboat war. Of fundamental importance in any study of the war at sea. Due to its size this volume is printed in two parts. £75.00

RAF IN MARITIME WAR, Vol. IV

Air Historical Branch, Mint paperback reprint of a 1947 publication. 740pp. This fourth volume of the series covers the period from February 1943 to May 1944. It includes details of all anti-U-Boat operations, the Bay Air Offensive, the anti-shipping war in NW European Waters, the final phase of enemy blockade running in the Far East, enemy major units (Scahrhorst, Tirpitz, Lutzow, Admiral Hipper), the bombing of enemy ports and naval objectives, aerial minelaying, and the air defence of shipping in Home Waters. There are many appendices to fill out the facts, and a complete series of charts showing U-Boat locations during the period. £110.00

RAF IN THE BOMBER OFFENSIVE AGAINST GERMANY, VOLUME I

Air Historical Branch, 436pp, Mint paperback Reprint of a 1947 publication. : The first of a series of narratives describing the role of Bomber Command in the air offensive against Germany. This volume describes the background and origins of Bomber Command and preparations for war against Germany. Details are given of the expansion programme and equipment, and of bombing policy, plans for bomber command in war and the intelligence machinery set up for this purpose. The first part of a really important series of narratives. £45.00

RAF IN THE BOMBING OFFENSIVE AGAINST GERMANY VOLUME II

Air Historical Branch, 262pp Mint paperback Reprint. This second volume of the narrative covers the organisation Bomber Command from 1939 to 1941, including HQ administration, the organisation in September 1939, reorganisation of training, supply problems, and the reorganisation of the command between 1940 and May 1941. The opening of the offensive is described together with operations in support of the Army in Norway and the Low Countries and France. £35.00

RAF IN THE BOMBING OFFENSIVE AGAINST GERMANY, Vol. V

Air Historical Branch Mint paperback reprint of a 1947 publication. 396pp. : The story of the bombing offensive against Germany continues and this volume covers the period February 1943 to February 1944. As ever the detail is superb and the volume is complete with all appendices. £45.00

RAF IN THE BOMBING OFFENSIVE AGAINST GERMANY, Vol. VI

Air Historical Branch Mint paperback reprint of a 1947 publication. 496pp. : This, the sixth volume in the series, covers the RAF offensive against Germany from March 1944 to May 1945. Again, complete with maps and appendices. £55.00

RAF OPERATIONS IN IRAQ (May 1941)

Air Historical Branch, Mint paperback reprint of a 1947 publication. 100pp. : The short campaign waged by the RAF in Iraq in 1941 had far less impact than recent events in that country. This is the narrative of operations in 1941 and covers the siege of Habbaniya, the relief and the advance on Baghdad. Interesting to compare the low key of these operations with the later US led operations in the last decade and more. £30.00

Kirke, C Lt.Colonel 260p. This book is about the people in the Army, and the very human interactions between them in their daily lives. It marries the disciplines of Social Anthropology and Military History to provide a novel way of looking at the anatomy of the British Army at unit level from an entirely human perspective. Concentrating on the attitudes, expectations, and concerns expressed by the people involved, it sets out a set of simple models of life at regimental duty that can be used to describe, analyze and explain their behaviour over the past 300 years. The book is grounded on what soldiers of all ranks have said, using the author's research interview material for the modern witnesses, and memoirs, diaries, and letters (published and unpublished) for earlier ones. £59.50 unknown Mint paperback reprint. 388pp. This book consists of two volumes, both written after the war by German Officers who were intimately involved in the subject, and who were recruited by the US Air Force to commit their memoirs and recollections to paper for future historical study. This is the first time these papers have been available in print outside the United States. This is a detailed account of Luftwaffe plans for its participation in the proposed invasion of England in 1940 - Operation Sealion. The role of the Luftwaffe was partly support for naval and land forces and partly interdiction and air combat against the Royal Air Force. The book gives a full account of how the Luftwaffe intended to carry out its tasks. It also looks at the military-political developments during the second half of 1940 and the postponement of the operation. There is in addition a critique of the operation itself and comments on the problems of the military command. An interesting picture of what might have been. £42.00

ROLE OF THE LUFTWAFFE IN OPERATION SEALION

ROYAL ENGINEERS BATTLEFIELD TOUR, Vol. I: NORMANDY TO THE SEINE

Chief Engineer, BAOR Mint paperback reprint. 222pp. This first volume of two gives details of all operations by the Royal Engineers during D-Day and up to the Seine crossing at Vernon. It covers I Corps plans for the assault, operations of 6 Airborne Division, the assault by 3 British Division, bridging the Caen Canal and the River Orne, the construction of airfield in France, the capture of Le Havre and the Seine crossing at Vernon. There are many maps and photographs in the book which enhance the sheer pleasure of reading this wonderful account. As with Volume II of this set, readers are strongly recommended to dig deep and get copies. £55.00

ROYAL ENGINEERS BATTLEFIELD TOUR, Vol. II: SEINE TO THE RHINE

Chief Engineer, BAOR Mint paperback reprint. 396pp. This second volume of the Royal Engineers account of the campaign in Europe 1944-1945 covers operations from after the Seine crossing to the Rhine crossing by 30 Corps in March 1945. It also gives an account of operations in France and Flanders 1940, and then goes on to look at operations in Belgium and the advance of 30 Corps to the Neder Rijn, 1 Airborne Division at Arnhem, airfield construction in the Eindhoven area, the battle of the Rhineland between the Maas and the Rhine in February 1945, and concludes with details of the Rhine crossing. Like its companion, Volume I, the book is full of details, and includes all the original maps reproduced in colour (15 at A2 size). This volume is, like volume I, fundamental to an understanding of the overall picture of these operations, and the maps add even more to that picture. Totally recommended, and well worth the money! Originals of this volume are as scarce as copies of Volume I, but we are sure you will enjoy these accounts. £75.00

STRATEGIC BOMBING OF AXIS EUROPE JANUARY 1943-SEPTEMBER 1944

US Air Staff Mint paperback reprint of a 1944 publication. 130pp. The importance of this report is twofold: firstly it covers the strategic/operational bombing effort in the important period before and during operations to recapture France and the Low Countries and secondly it classifies attacks by target type. Thus the targets covered include ball and other bearings, oil, submarine yards, tanks, armaments and transportation. It also includes both the USAAF and RAF efforts. Attacks are dated, and the data includes place, importance, and damage done. Although obviously based to an extent on crew reports, all targets were photographed before, during and after the attack so it appears that the damage assessments are not too wide of the mark. £16.00

Tactical Operations of the Eighth Air Force June 44 - May 45

This is an account of tactical air operations carried out by the US 8 Air Force from D-Day to the end of the war in Europe. It relates what was done to support the ground operations on D-Day itself, and immediately thereafter. It then follows the campaign inland. It also covers general air operations, supply drops and operations against the V-bomb offensive, Operation Crossbow. Further details include attacks on radar installations, coastal batteries, air-sea rescue and leaflet drops. The appendices are detailed and give a statistical picture of Crossbow operations and anti-German Airfield attacks. A valuable addition to the land warfare papers on D-Day and subsequent operations already published. ISBN: 9781847910127 £40.00

The 43rd Wessex Division at War 1944-1945

This is the story of the 43rd Division from its arrival in France during Operation Overlord in June 1944 through to the end of the war with Germany. It relates how the division fought and where, and is illustrated with 21 maps. The division was engaged on the River Odon, and at Hill 112, then in the Seine crossing, the attempted relief at Arnhem, at Groesbeek, in Operation Blackcock and the advance to Goch and Xanten. It also took part in the Battle of the Rhineland and in Operations Plunder and Varsity and made its final move to capture Bremen in 1945. Very readable, and an important volume in our Divisional History series of the Second World War. ISBN: 9781847910400 £35.00

The Battle of Crete: Hitler's Airborne Gamble

The author questions whether the German air assault on Crete was worth the losses incurred. German paratroop casualties were such that they were never again used in a strategic role, being consigned thereafter to a ground role. Major Biank looks carefully at the operation and comes to some valuable conclusions about the balance between strategic gain and losses incurred to specialist troops. Important in the study and evaluation of airborne operations. ISBN: 9781847911216 £10.00

The Battle of El Alamein - Operations prior to the Offensive

This is another of the series of CAB papers covering the Battle of El Alamein and describes operations prior to the offensive. It continues the story from the end of Rommel's attack (see CAB 44/99: The German Attack, already reprinted) and covers raiding operations in September 1942, the attack on Deir el Munassib at the end of September and planning and preparation for Operation Lightfoot. ISBN: 9781847910950 £45.00

The BEF in Belgium and Artois 1940

This is the official record of the operations of the BEF in Belgium and Artois from the day the Germans moved against the West on 10 May 1940 to 3 June, at which time Dunkirk was a harbour known to every British man and woman. It is a detailed account of operations and is accompanied by the relevant maps. ISBN: 9781847910882 £45.00

The German Air Force versus Russia 1943

This is the third part of a series on the Luftwaffe in Russia and covers operations from Stalingrad, and includes the Kuban Bridgehead defence. It then describes Luftwaffe preparations for and combat in Operation Zitadelle and the fighting in the Orel salient. Further chapters cover air and flak in the battle for the Crimea, operations in the north and far north and ends with a critique of Luftwaffe operations in the east in 1943. ISBN: 9781847910929 £43.00

The German Assault on the Alamein Position

Prior to the success of Operation Supercharge in November 1942, the situation in August and September was still apparently biased in the favour of the joint German-Italian forces in North Africa. At the end of August the Germans launched an ambitious attack against the El Alamein defensive position, threatening to outflank the British and Commonwealth troops. This is the detailed account of that battle, accompanied by a full set of planning and situation maps (seven of them in size A2). ISBN: 9781847910578 £55.00

The Preparations for the German Offensive in the Ardennes

The German attack in the west in December 1944 was a last attempt by the German forces to disrupt the progress eastwards of the Allied armies under Eisenhower, and for some days it was a threat to strategic plans and Anglo-American peace of mind. This account of the German preparations for the attack was written by Maj Schramm, who was the official German war historian. It gives details of the planning, and the changes in plan, before the attack was launched to the surprise of all on December 16, 1944. It is of particular value in that it is apparently the only English language publication on the subject. Of great interest is the hands-on approach by Hitler. ISBN: 9781847910585 £30.00

The Rise and Fall of the German Air Force

This manual was issued by the British Air Ministry in 1948, and is a complete and detailed history of the German Luftwaffe from concept to defeat. There is little that can be said about the book except that it is the best history possible and makes exceptionally good reading, covering all aspects of the Luftwaffe story with ample illustrations, maps and tables. ISBN: 9781847910936 £50.00

The Soviet Army 1942-1953

This publication draws together three original pamphlets on the Soviet Army, two of which are wartime titles, and one is a post-war British Army pamphlet. The Soviet Fighting Forces looks at the history of the Red Army, the Finnish Campaign, the Red Army in 1942 and its strategy and tactics and personnel. Short Notes on the Red Army was issued in 1942 by the British Army and describes the characteristics and organisation of the Soviet ground and air forces, and also covers AFVs, artillery, aircraft and other weapons, plus a short note on tactics and Russian military conventional signs and military abbreviations. There is a coloured section on uniforms and insignia. The third pamphlet, The Soviet Army, although issued in 1949 (amended to 1951) actually reflects the Red Army at the end of the war with some later changes. This last pamphlet also includes a number of OrBats and strength tables. ISBN: 9781847911094 £35.00

The Story of 46 Division 1939-1945

This story of the 4th Division covers the movements and operations of the Division from its earliest days in Britain via Tunisia and Italy to Greece at the end of the war. Although not one of the D-Day Divisions, like many other formations, it was fundamental to the success of the wider plans for the course of the war. The fighting in North Africa and Italy is detailed, and the whole book is excellently illustrated with maps and photographs. ISBN: 9781847910066 £16.00

TOBRUK & EL ALAMEIN

Maughan, Baton Mint paperback reprint of a 1965 publication. 900pp.: The campaign in North Africa from the Australian point of view. This massive tome (reprinted in two volumes) is an excellent, minutely detailed account of Australian troops from March 1941 to December 1942. It is essentially the history of the Ninth Australian Division but is told in relation to other Allied troops also on the battlefield. This is a really good account which stands equal to any publication on this area of warfare. Highly recommended. £55.00

VOICE OF THE INFANTRY in the NW Europe Campaign 1944-45 - 56th (Independent) Infantry Brigade

Holborn, Andrew; Paperback, 180pp. This is a record of battlefield experiences - told by the men who were part of 56th (Independent) Infantry Brigade - 2 Bn Essex Regiment, 2 Bn The Glosters and 2 Bn South Wales Borderers and those at Brigade HQ. It is a fascinating assembly of first hand accounts of the invasion of France and events after that. No fewer than 50 participants were interviewed and the author has also provided a very valuable account of the formation of the Brigade, its position in the Order of Battle and its role on D-Day. In all a first class read. £20.00

WAR AT SEA 1939-45

Rohwer. LF 192p 250+ photos. Every aspect discussed £28.00

WAR AT SEA, Vol. 1 (1939-1940)

Hurford, George Mint paperback reprint of a 1944 publication. 304pp.: The first volume of Hurford's history covers the outbreak of the war, Norway, the Low Countries and withdrawal from the Continent (Operation DYNAMO), the Battle of Britain and defence against invasion, the Battle of the Atlantic and operations in Home Waters and the Outer Oceans.

This history is used by the Naval Historical Branch as the basis for all British naval operations during the Second World War and the detail is astounding. £40.00

WAR AT SEA, Vol. 2 (1941)

Hurford, George Mint paperback reprint of a 1944 publication. 376pp.: Volume 2 of Hurford's monumental work covers 1941 in the Mediterranean and East Africa, and also looks at commerce raiders, enemy air attacks, the Battle of the Atlantic, cooperation with the USA and Russia, the Far East and Japan (and the loss of capital ships to air attack), and the start of the convoys to Russia. The volume gives a detailed picture of the year from the point of view of the Royal Navy. £45.00

WAR AT SEA, Vol. 3 (1942)

Hurford, George Mint paperback reprint of a 1945 publication. 594pp.: This third volume starts with the fall of Singapore in early 1942 and goes on to describe operations by the Royal Navy throughout 1942. It includes details of the Russian convoys, the escape of the German capital ships from Brest, the Bruneval and St Nazaire raids, the U-boat campaign and its extension into the western Atlantic, operations in the Mediterranean, the Malta convoys, support of the Army in Libya, operations off Ceylon, the capture of Diego Suarez, the beginning of Pacific operations, the Atlantic raiders, the air assault on Malta, the Indian Ocean, the advance from El Alamein and the anti-U-Boat campaign. £60.00

WAR AT SEA, Vol. 4 (1943)

Hurford, George Mint paperback reprint of a 1945 publication. 626pp.: This fourth Hurford volume covers 1943 and relates operations in the Mediterranean (and the Casablanca Conference), Home Waters and the Arctic, blockade runners, coastal operations, the U-boat campaign and the turn of the tide in the War in the Atlantic, the clearance of North Africa and the reopening of the Mediterranean, the conquest of Sicily, enemy use of glider bombs, the midget submarine attack on the Tirpitz, operations in the Indian Ocean, the stopping and restarting of Russian convoys and the Azores. £60.00

WAR AT SEA, Vol. 5 (1944)

Hurford, George Mint paperback reprint of a 1946 publication. The number of naval operations carried out in 1944 was so high and the account of them so lengthy that this volume has been divided into two parts for ease of handling. The volume looks at Mediterranean operations, the work of coastal forces and raids in the Adriatic and the Aegean Seas, Home Command and Northern Waters and the Russian convoys, coastal forces, the U-boat campaign in the outer oceans, Japanese atrocities, the Eastern Fleet and progress in the Pacific, Mediterranean operations and the relief of Anzio, minelaying in the Danube, the naval air attack on the Tirpitz, German flying bomb attacks, the Invasion of Normandy, the liberation of France, the assault on Walcheren and the opening of Antwerp. In all this was a momentous year and this history does it full justice. £85.00

WAR AT SEA, Vol. 6 (1945)

Hurford, George Mint paperback reprint of a 1946 publication. This final volume of Hurford recounts the last months of the war and starts with the crossing of the Rhine, and continues with Mediterranean operations, the U-boat campaign, the Indian Ocean and the Pacific, the end of the war with Germany, and the final days of the war with Japan. £65.00
